DECOY

MOSSCREEK COLLECTION

DECOY

2,340 total square feet

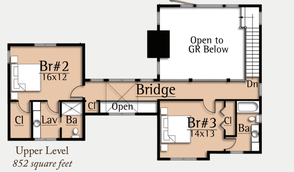

For thousands of years, Native Americans across North America used cattails, other grasses, and rushes to make floating decoys to lure waterfowl.

This ingenious use of natural materials to create an alluring appearance can also be found in the Decoy by MossCreek. Our new design features stone, true log veneer, poplar bark siding and white cedar siding.

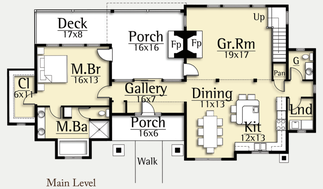

The interior is entered via an open glass gallery that looks out over the outdoor living and view beyond. One right turn and you enter into a spacious great room/ kitchen/ dining area. The main level also features an expansive outdoor living and master suite. The upper level is configured with two bedrooms and baths, and a dramatic balcony that overlooks into the great room below.

CAMAS CREEK

2,681 total square feet

Camas Creek is filled bank to bank from April-June. An incredible purple camas lily bloom begins in late May and generally peaks about mid-June. During this time, thousands of waterfowl, shorebirds, and other waterbirds use the area.

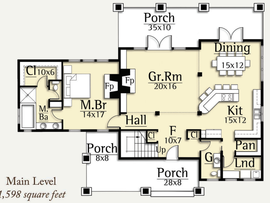

The Camas Creek by MossCreek is the perfect cabin for just such an environment. Cabin windows, canoe paddle accents, and a adirondack railing, all work to give this home it's mountain-nautical theme. The interior features open living areas and master suite with beamed ceilings. The vaulted ceiling of the great room lets dramatic light fill the home. On the upper level the Camas Creek features two pleasant guest rooms, his and hers sinks, and loft and sitting areas. At home on any lake, bay or estuary, the Camas Creek is an ideal home enjoying Americas outdoors.

CAROLINA

CAROLINA
3,229 total square feet

The Carolina territory was named in honor of Charles the First. For a twenty-year period, 1692-1712, the pioneer colonies of North and South Carolina existed as one unit of government.

The Carolina by MossCreek captures this same pioneer spirit with 3 bedrooms, 3-1/2 baths, including a master on the main level. A large Great Room with exposed timber trusses and an open Kitchen / Dining Room complete a dramatic interior. Exterior timber and Shingle detailing complete the feel of this modern pioneer camp.

ALLEGHENY

ALLEGHENY
3,668 total square feet

The word "Allegheny" was once commonly used to refer to the whole of what are now called the Appalachian Mountains. As late as 1867, John Muir, in his book A Thousand Mile Walk to the Gulf, used the word "Alleghenies" in referring to the southern Appalachians.

The Allegheny by MossCreek follows in it's namesake's footsteps. Perfectly at home in any mountain or natural setting. The Allegheny features open plan living, four generous master suites, and an upper den and observatory deck.

For quick getaways, or long term living, the Allegheny is ideally suited for living for just about any natural setting.

MIDDLEBURG

MIDDLEBURG
1,224 total square feet

The Middleburg Camp is a 1,224 s.f. re-creation of America's Appalachian past. The design is curiously primitive in the same manner as the original Appalachian cabins. In the interior, the layout is a simple two bedroom cabin with an open living/ kitchen/ dining area; prefect for a weekend getaway or a guest house.
